Southern Conservative Racist Uneducated Dumb Evangelical (SCRUDE)

I have long known that all the subject labels, except racist, assigned to me by the mainstream media applied. Now I am not sure, because the brilliant Chris Matthews has redefined racism. He has explained that if you didn't vote for and support the "smartest president" in US history, then you must be a racist. Chris Matthews is proof positive that high IQ, and wisdom are not always found in the same package.

An editorial writer recently wrote in a Czech Republic newspaper that Obama is not the problem, but only a symptom. The problem is a population dumb enough to elect him – twice.

Now that at least half the US population is dependent on the government, and open borders will flood the country with more democrats, the whole country can be just like California. We can have a congress completely filled with Barbara Boxer/Diane Feinstein/Nancy Pelosi clones. Won't that be great?

It was in the 1830s that de Tocqueville came over from France. His main mission was to study our prison system, but he found our democracy much more interesting than our prisons. Reading his Democracy in America leads one to believe he understood 21st century Americans better than we understand ourselves. His most quoted line:

"The American Republic will endure until the day Congress discovers that it can bribe the public with the public's money."

Our President and Congress love us so much that after they spend all of our money, they borrow – and print - more, just so they can spend it on us. Aren't we lucky?

De Tocqueville said:

"America is great because she is good. If America ceases to be good, America will cease to be great."

Yes, we were good in his day, but we are even gooder now. We were badder in the 40's and 50's when I was growing up than we are now. We didn't know about political correctness then. We called African Americans negroes or colored, and homosexuals were often referred to as queers. The churches required marriages to be between a man and women only, and they wouldn't even ordain queers – excuse me, I should have said homosexuals.

Having babies out of wedlock was frowned upon, and abortions were illegal. We were so narrow minded that after Ingrid Bergman had an affair, her US movie career was ended, and she was one of Hollywood's biggest stars.

We've gotten over that narrow-minded stuff. We have aborted millions of babies, and our hero movie stars openly live together and have children without being married.
